Extraversion / Introversion: I scored high on extraversion and I agree with this because since I was a kid, I have always been a social person and I love making new friends and meeting new people. When I was in high school I was in charge of all the social events and sport activities. I also participated in several events and also receive awards for being active in social events. However recently, I would call consider myself more introverted, I do not like participating in social events anymore, I prefer to stay home all day than to go out with friends or party. I have grown to enjoy my personal space and being introverted.

Sensing / Intuition: I scored a high on sensing. I agree with this result because I pay attention to things that exist rather than what could be. I like to receive specific and detailed instructions. I find it difficult and frustrating when I am given a task without specific instructions. An example of this is when I am given an assignment at school, I get really frustrated when the instructions are not specific or detailed. I love it when I was tangible results of my skills and handwork. However, I am also intuitive, I love to learn new skills and look for solution to new problems. An example of this is when I was younger I would learn every skill I could learn, and I often selected as part of the students to be taught new skills because I am a very fast learner and I enjoy learning new things.

Thinking/Feeling: I scored high on feelings and I agree with it because I find it easy to sympathize with others. I am a person who often makes decisions based on emotions and how the outcome of my decision will affect other people. An example of this was when I coordinated a dance presentation and I had to choose the best ten dancers out of the fifteen kids who wanted to be part of the presentation, I felt bad about the telling five kids that they were not going to be part of the presentation, therefore I met with the organizers of the event and came up with an arrangement that allowed all fifteen kids to perform the dance.

Judging/perceiving: I scored a high on perceiving, I agree with the result, however I am not fully a perceiving person. I agree that I have a perceiving personality because sometimes I am flexible, and I love to keep options open. I love to keep options open because I believe that there might be a better option. I love to gather and collect new information instead of drawing conclusion. An example of this is when I was shopping for a new laptop, I kept looking for new information about different laptop and all the various options I had and it was difficult for me to conclude on the exact type of laptop I was going to buy because I felt that I could always look for and find a new and better option. I am also a judging person because when it comes to projects and tasks, I love to get things accomplished and I am happy when I check off a completed. An example of this is when I complete my assignments or complete the plan I had for a day, I get excited.

Extraversion: I scored a high mark on extraversion and I agree with it. I agree with it because I love making new friends and I am willing to engage in activities with other people. I also agree with it because I have a confident personality and I am gregarious. An example of this was when I got into college I did not know anyone and I did not have friends, however before the end of my first week at college I already made a lot of friends, my siblings were so surprised by the amount of friends I had already made at a short amount of time

Agreeableness: I had a moderate score on agreeableness and I agree with it. I agree with my score because I am often warm and cooperative some of the time. Sometimes, I put others needs ahead of mine especially when my needs are not as urgent the other person's needs. An example of a time like this was when my younger sister needed some money to repair her car , although I had plans for my money, I gave it to her because repairing her car was more important than what I planned to use the money for. However, in some cases I could be cold and disagreeable especially when the situation might harm me. An example of this was when I was part of a group and we were assigned a project, members of the group often seemed to agree on plans that could be bad for the project and could result in everyone getting a bad grade so, I had to disagree with some of the plans and decisions made by the group.

Conscientiousness: I had a high score on conscientiousness and I agree with this because I am hardworking, organized and dependable. An example of this is at my work my supervisor often gives me important projects to work on because she trusts that I will do a good job. Whatever I would I always try to put in a lot of effort to achieve good results. I believe that whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well.

Emotional Stability: I score lower than average on this and I agree with it. Sometimes I feel sad, worried, anger and guilt., I am self-confident and cool about most situations. I do not let myself get discouraged easily or look down on my myself. An example of this was when I was about to take an excel competency test, most of my friends decided not to take the test because they got the news that eighty percent of student who had taken the exam failed, however I did not let this discourage me, I studied for the test and I passed it. I am an optimistic and positive person.

Openness to experience: I scored high on this and I agree with it. I agree with this score because I am a very creative and imaginative person, I love arts and I am open to new trends. I also enjoy participating in artistic and cultural activities. An example of this is during my leisure time I love to sketch designs for clothes and I love to draw. I also love listening to music from different countries and cultures even though I do not understand the language. I just really love arts and creating new things.
